Writing Prompt-Imagine that...you woke up this morning and your parents have just told you that you're moving to another state tomorrow. You have no choice in the matter, and now you have to move your life to an unfamiliar city and even school. You arrive to your new school the next day, and everyone has their own "clique". But, you're the "new kid", where do you fit in? How do you decide which "clique" is the best fit for you? What if none of the "cliques" accept you? What do you do then?
